

GOLF SCHOOLS 2010

Budock Vean, with its spectacular parkland golf course and award-winning gardens, is set in an area of outstanding natural beauty on the south-facing bank of the Helford River. David Short has been operating Golf Schools at Budock Vean for many years. This delightful course is playable throughout the year, such is the equanimity of the climate in this most southerly part of the British Isles.

Three day schools include instruction on all parts of the game, on-course instruction and course management, the psychology of playing to your potential and much more.

The schools are for long term improvement not just short term gain. You will learn the keys for continuing improvement to all parts of your game. You will learn how to practice them effectively to suit your ability and aspirations. There is much more to playing better golf than technique alone. You will learn how to take your game to the course and how to develop your course management to play your best...consistently.

Each school encompasses:

- All abilities
- Group clinics on all aspects of the game
- Limited numbers (maximum 6) to ensure individual attention
- Video analysis
- Course notes and information sheets
- On course guidance and course management
- Unlimited range balls
- Use of short game practice area and academy holes
- Green fees
- Impartial equipment advice
- Discussions on rules & etiquette for the newer player

Typical Three-Day Golf School Programme:

- Day 1
a.m. Arrival followed by Introduction & swing video analysis.
p.m. Individual swing instruction & putting clinic.
- Day 2
a.m. Chipping & pitching. Swing instruction including driving.
p.m. Course management followed by 9 holes with instruction.
- Day 3
a.m. Sand bunkers & other problem shots. More individual swing instruction.
p.m. Practice routines & individual review.
